A timely and heartfelt collection of essays inspired by the #MeToo movement, edited by acclaimed author Janet Gertler. Featuring Betsy Devos, Mackenzie Lee, Ellen Hopkins, Samantha Mitchell, Jennifer Brown, Cheryl Rainfield and many more. When the #MeToo movement took hold, we were among the millions of people who signed a petition for the #MeToo movement. We were not just signing a petition, we were speaking out against sexual harassment and assault. We were telling our stories, and we were helping to create a safer world for everyone. You Too? was born out of that need. It has been thoughtful and inspiring. Her personal stories connect with a wide range of experiences and are a reminder to readers that they are not alone.	You Too? In this collection of 25 essays, each author shares a personal story of sexual harassment or assault. The stories are written in a variety of styles, from first-person narratives to reflective pieces. The editors have carefully selected these stories to provide a comprehensive and powerful look at the #MeToo movement. The book is a timely and heartfelt collection of essays inspired by the #MeToo movement. It is a reminder that we are not alone and that we can make a difference.	There Is Strength in Our Voices Cheryl Rainfield I was never a feminist. In fact, I was a feminist before I was a feminist. I was a feminist because I was a woman and I was being treated as if I was not a woman. I was being treated as if I was not a person. I was being treated as if I was not a human being. I was never a feminist. In fact, I was a feminist before I was a feminist.
